

A NOTE FROM THE ARTIST

Summer is flying by, and I find myself playing catch-up with my art. It's been a whirlwind, balancing the promotion of the recently released book History of Psychology through Symbols, which I had the privilege of illustrating for psychologist James Broderick, while also putting the finishing touches on my upcoming illustrations for a delightful children's book by Peter Martin (petergmartin.com). It's been an exhilarating ride! Amidst all this, I continue to submit my artwork to local and regional shows, staying engaged with the vibrant art scene. But what's at the top of my priority list? I am getting back into my studio and diving deep into my painting.

FACES AND FIGURES

My "Circular Vibrations" painting is part of an exhibit at the Las Laguna Art Gallery that showcases work that examines human emotions, faces, and figures.

POLITICS AND ART

Las Laguna Art Gallery is showcasing my illustration of Lady Liberty in their online exhibition, which delves into the role of art in today's political landscape. The exhibition will be available on the website through April 2025.

AUTHOR SPOTLIGHT

I was honored to be invited for an interview conducted by Lorelee M. Scott, Senior Director of Pacifica Extension and International Studies. During the hour-long conversation, author James Broderick and I, as the illustrator for "History and Psychology through Symbols," explored the role of the creative process and symbols in psychological movements throughout history. The interview will soon be available online at <https://extension.pacifica.edu/author-spotlight/>.

More details about our book signing event scheduled for September 12th will be coming soon.
